The Youth Machine

In one day, long ago, when you finish reading a book about time travel and construction of a Youth Machine, came a great curiosity would like to know the future.

But at the time I had read the book that a friend had lent me, speaking of theories that went against science recognized by great scientists. As the theory which regarded the circular time and everything always existed and always existed.

With my confidence in watching TV, listening in radio news and talk of wheels My friends who studied physics. Soon returned the book for that friend.

After 10 years with new friends, in a conversation about politics and economics, came to mind that book by curiosity to know how would the human centuries ahead of us in organizations.

Curiosity, an evening of conversations with the passing day was turning obsession. I wish I could go ahead of my time to observe the consequences comings of the system evolution that was included. Because reflecting and trying to make predictions, amounted to a future I did not like.

Obsessive went looking among old boxes, my address books in the hope that one friend who had lent me the book on the machine youth, was at the same address or someone could inform me where he had gone to live.

It was very difficult to find because not remembered His name and would have to find a picture and he was hope that the verse could find his name.

Luckily I found the only picture I had him and you wrote the full name of all, because it is the first picture was taken at a camp of my college class.

With my name and agendas, could find the old address and telephone number of your residence. In that moment would be so lucky that the call he answer.

Feeling excited to rediscover this friend and to read the book that could help me finish with my obsession. For if while reading the book, realizing that really can not make this trip, give up this demand and live my life without the illusion of power prove my predictions.

When calling have not had much luck. My friend had moved from city to five years. But it was not unlucky complete, because who had attended was the younger sister him, who had inherited the house from their parents, I stating the new address.

The city, which he was, was not far from mine, a few hours drive, resolving to visit that week, despite missing three days to end up.

To avoid the risk of losing the journey called the number that his sister had passed me and confirmed one day to the reunion, it would be Saturday.

With the eagerness to get that book again to end my
